For over 45 years, Lee Rose has been designing lighting for television, film, music and theater. Starting in theater, then moving on to touring concert lighting, Lee moved into television and film lighting in the mid-1980's. From 1984 until 1998, Lee was a partner in Ocean, Rose & Associates, a film and video lighting design firm located in Hollywood. Then in 1998 became a partner in Design Partners, Inc., an award winning association of lighting designers and directors of photography. Now after 18 years Lee is moving on again to start his own firm Lee Rose Designs.

Lee has been twice nominated for Emmy Awards for his work with Yanni, including the "Yanni: Live at the Acropolis" concert at the nearly 1500 year old Herod Atticus theatre. He was again nominated for his lighting design work on "Yanni: Tribute", a show that featured concerts taped at the Taj Mahal, in Agra India and The Forbidden City in Beijing China. In addition Lee was awarded Lighting Dimensions "Lighting Designer of the Year" for his lighting design work on that project.

Lee's lighting design work has been seen in feature films including "Southland Tales", "Bringing Down the House", "Vanilla Sky" and "Almost Famous". His television lighting design work is seen on the Chelsea Lately and comedy specials with Eddie Griffin, Nick Cannon and Christopher Titus and annual events such as The Jerry Lewis MDA Telethon, The Daytime Emmy Awards and Revolver's Golden Gods Awards.

Since 1985, Lee has designed the lighting for the music for "Dick Clark's New Year's Rockin' Eve. Dick Clark Productions also used Lee to light the last seasons of "American Bandstand" and both the 40th & 50th "American Bandstand Anniversary Specials". In addition to his work with Yanni, Lee has also designed the lighting for music specials for artists including; Garth Brooks, Natalie Cole, Johnny Lang, Roy Orbison, Les Paul, Bonnie Raitt, Carly Simon, N-Sync, John Tesh, and Wynonna.

As a person who is always ready to be of service, Lee is often asked to speak on various industry panels and has given seminars on lighting for organizations such as The International Cinematographers Guild, CNN and the annual entertainment lighting show; LDI. A believer in using technology to further the possibilities of art, Lee has stayed at the forefront of the new technologies available.
